Benefits:

The dataset provides interested parties, including public officials, organ and tissue donation and transplantation partners, e.g. organ procurement organizations, eye and tissue banks, transplant centers, and the general public information regarding NYS Donate Life Registry enrollment rates and patterns of enrollment throughout New York. This information can be used to measure New York's progress toward the national average of more than 50% of a state's eligible population enrolled in their donor registry.

Interested parties can utilize the dataset to assess and identify local target areas for Registry promotional activities and measure the success of those efforts through time.
